

DR. MICHAEL ROBERTS

Lecturer

 (396) 496-8698

 michael.roberts@email.com

 New York, NY

Professional summary

Experienced academic with a Ph.D. in English Literature, specializing in Victorian and Modernist fiction. Seeking a part-time lecturer position at Columbia University to inspire students and contribute to curriculum development. Available for evening and weekend classes.

Education

Ph.D. in English Literature of New York University, NY

Graduated: May 2022

- Dissertation: "The Representation of Class Struggles in Victorian Fiction"

Master of Arts in English Literature of New York University, NY

Graduated: May 2018

Experience

Adjunct Professor of English Literature September 2022 - Now

New York University, NY

- Teach courses in 19th-century British literature and literary theory to undergraduate students.
- Design course materials, lectures, and assessments that align with academic goals.
- Mentor students on research projects and provide academic guidance.

Articles & Publications

- Author: "Class Dynamics in the Works of Charles Dickens," The Victorian Review, Vol. 45, No. 2, 2023.
- Co-author: "Gender and Empire in Postcolonial Literature," Modern Fiction Studies, Vol. 68, No. 1, 2022.

Availability

Available for evening and weekend lectures. Open to part-time consulting roles for curriculum development.

Skills

Expert in literary analysis and academic writing

Expert

Curriculum development and instructional design

Expert

Strong public speaking and presentation skills

Expert

Proficient in online teaching platforms (Canvas, Blackboard)

Expert

Links

References available upon request.