

Visiting Assistant Professor

Roberto Emerick M.A.

Professional summary

Dynamic Visiting Assistant Professor with expertise in 19th-century British literature and postcolonial studies. Proven ability to deliver engaging lectures, guide student research, and contribute to departmental initiatives. Published author with a commitment to fostering academic curiosity and collaboration.

Experience

Visiting Assistant Professor – English Department

August 2022 - Now

University of Houston / TX

- Teach undergraduate courses on Victorian literature, literary theory, and world literature.
- Guide students in independent research projects, resulting in three conference presentations.
- Participate in departmental meetings and curriculum planning for new courses.
- Organize a guest lecture series that featured prominent scholars in British literature.

Adjunct Instructor – English Literature

January 2018 - July 2022

Texas State University / San Marcos, TX

- Delivered lectures on American and British literary traditions to students.
- Designed engaging course materials and implemented active learning strategies.
- Created online resources to support student learning during hybrid semesters.
- Provided mentorship to students seeking graduate school admissions.

Teaching Assistant

August 2014 - May 2018

University of Texas at Austin / TX

- Assisted professors with grading, classroom discussions, and preparation.
- Organized and led supplementary workshops for students needing additional academic support.
- Managed administrative tasks, including course scheduling and resource allocation.

Publications

- Martinez, S. (2024). The Role of Imperialism in 19th-Century British Poetry. Journal of Postcolonial Studies.
- Martinez, S. (2022). Gender and Power in Victorian Fiction. Cambridge University Press.
- Martinez, S. (2018). The Evolution of the Byronic Hero in English Literature. Modern Literary Review.

 (555) 543-2109

 roberto.emerick@email.com

 Austin, TX

Education

Master of Arts in English Literature

University of Texas at Austin, TX

Graduated: May 2016

Bachelor of Arts in English

Texas A&M University, College Station, TX

Graduated: May 2014

Skills

Course development and syllabus design

Student mentorship and academic advising

Research in British and postcolonial literature

Public speaking and classroom management

Collaborative curriculum planning

Literature analysis and critical theory application

Writing and editing for publication

Conference organization

Digital teaching tools and online learning platforms

Interdisciplinary research collaboration 