NHS Trust – Pathology Department

Dear Mr. Davidson,

I am writing to apply for the Biomedical Scientist position within your Pathology Department. After a three-year career break to focus on raising my children, I am eager to return to my professional career and contribute my experience in clinical biochemistry to an organization like NHS Trust.

Previously, I worked as a biomedical scientist at Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham, where I performed diagnostic analysis of clinical samples, interpreted results, and provided support to clinical teams. I also gained experience in laboratory management and quality control, ensuring compliance with ISO 15189 standards. I have recently completed a refresher course in clinical laboratory techniques to ensure I am up-to-date with the latest practices and technologies.

The opportunity to work with NHS Trust, a renowned institution that makes a direct impact on patient care, excites me. I am particularly drawn to your emphasis on quality improvement and multidisciplinary collaboration. I am confident that my passion, combined with my refreshed skill set, will allow me to make an immediate contribution to your team.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to discussing my qualifications in more detail.

Sincerely,

Sarah Thompson
